2 Restrictions and limitations apply. While medical information is not required when exercising a future increase option, applications to exercise an increase option will be financially underwritten, taking into consideration both the applicant’s then-current income, as well as all disability insurance which is then in force, or for which the insured has applied or is eligible to receive.

As a physician, Nailah is all too familiar with how injury and sickness could affect a person’s ability to work. Early in her career, she made the intelligent choice to protect her income with disability income insurance. During her residency, Nailah took advantage of two of our innovative programs to purchase a ProVider Plus disability policy. Through our Special Limits for New Professionals Program she was able to secure a $5,000 monthly benefit.¹ Our Student/Resident Discount Program offered Nailah a permanent 10% premium discount on her new policy.

Nailah also purchased our Future Increase Option (FIO) Rider, which guarantees her the opportunity to purchase more protection as her income grows – with no medical insurability requirements.² FIO options are available for exercise each year on the policy’s anniversary. Special option dates are also included in the rider for events such as loss of group long-term disability (LTD) coverage.

Immediately following residency, Nailah joined a family practice and within her first 90-days was able to exercise her FIO using a Special Option Date, because she was leaving an eligible group LTD plan. Since her income grew substantially upon leaving residency, it made sense to exercise as much as she could. She was able to secure an additional $1,650 of monthly benefit, bringing her total monthly benefit to $6,650.

During her second year at the practice, Nailah, who never experienced any type of neurological episode, had a seizure which resulted in a hospital stay where she underwent significant testing. Sadly, Nailah was diagnosed with Epilepsy, a serious ongoing medical disorder of the brain.

Unable to work due to the continuing seizures, Nailah’s policy began paying her monthly Total Disability Benefits after her Elimination Period was satisfied. Her doctors worked to stabilize her recurring seizures through medication. After eight months, her seizures were under control and she was able to return to work.

Although Nailah’s claim ended, her ProVider Plus policy continued to provide value. Her policy continued to waive premium for an additional six months. Plus, should she become disabled again in the next five years, whether due to Epilepsy or an entirely new cause, her policy’s exclusive Waiver of Elimination Period Provision will waive her elimination period, providing Nailah with benefit payments immediately.

WHAT’S IMPORTANT

- INNOVATIVE PROGRAMS: Our Special Limits for New Professionals Program provided Nailah a disability insurance benefit based on her income potential as a practicing doctor. Consequently, the total disability benefit of her policy was larger than she would have qualified for based on her residency income alone. Furthermore, Nailah did not have to provide any financial documentation to qualify. Our Student/Resident Discount Program provides those in training more affordable coverage with a 10% premium discount.

- NON-CANCELLABLE & GUARANTEED RENEWABLE: Renewability provisions are among the most critical features of any disability policy because they define your rights for keeping your coverage in force. ProVider Plus offers one of the strongest premium and coverage guarantees available because it is both Non-Cancellable and Guaranteed Renewable. Personal ownership of a non-cancellable and guaranteed renewable policy means you are assured that policy provisions will not be changed and premium rates cannot increase as long as premiums are paid on a timely basis. Plus, coverage is portable, so you can take it with you even if you change employers. In Nailah’s case, she’ll be able to take her policy with her should she want to pursue her dream of starting up her own practice.
